

Jul. 03, 2013

Sartorius (preferred shares) and Cancom to be included in TecDAX

On Tuesday Deutsche Börse decided on changes in its selection indices. No changes have been made to the constituents of the DAX, MDAX, and SDAX Indices. The following changes have been made to the TecDAX Index: The share of Sartorius AG (preferred shares) will be included in TecDAX and will replace the share of BB Biotech AG. The exclusion of BB Biotech AG was based on the rule, which states that companies without juristic headquarters in Germany but within the European Union or in an EFTA state have to fulfill a major share (33 percent) of their stock exchange turnover on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange including Xetra. Furthermore, the share of Cancom AG will replace the share of Centrotherm Photovoltaics AG in TecDAX. The changes will be effective as of 18 June 2012. The next regular index review will be held on 5 September 2012. Please go to www.dax-indices.com for further information. DAX, MDAX, SDAX and TecDAX are registered trademarks of Deutsche Börse AG. About Deutsche Börse – Market Data & Analytics Deutsche Börse is one of the world's leading service providers for the securities industry with a product and service offering for issuers, investors, intermediaries and data vendors. The Group covers the entire value chain from trading, through clearing, to settlement and securities custody. Deutsche Börse Market Data & Analytics collects, refines and disseminates capital market-relevant data. The product range includes price data, trading statistics, analyses, master data and approximately 6,100 indices that document what is happening on the international financial markets and make it transparent

For more information on the STOXX indices, please visit www.qontigo.com